Getting people talking about peace
through arts, film, food and tech

House of Vans London
Arches, 228–232 Station Approach Road
London, SE1 8SW

In partnership with:

GrubClub

Join us for two weeks of cultural events and discover how creativity can bring people together and resolve conflicts.

Now in its third year, the Talking Peace Festival returns with an exciting array of events about the importance of building peace, including:

Conflict Café

A unique culinary experience offering food from conflict areas and harnessing the power of food to break down barriers and get people talking.

Create Syria

A multimedia installation exploring how arts can help build a better future in the wake of crisis.

Talking Peace films

Free film screenings exploring the causes of conflict and the struggle for peace around the world.

#peacehack

A hackathon bringing together designers, developers and peace practitioners to develop digital solutions to hate speech.

The Talking Peace Festival is organised by peacebuilding charity International Alert in partnership with cultural hub House of Vans London, creative events agency Cult Events and pop-up and supper club curator Grub Club.

International Alert has been working for 30 years with people directly affected by conflict to find peaceful solutions. You can find out more at www.international-alert.org
